MRS. KATHERINE MACKEY SLIPS AWAY FROM ATTENDANT,

in Virginia.

Mrs. Katharine S. Mackey, wife of ex-Judge Thomas J. Mackey of South Carolina, and daughter of Col. Charles Porterfield of Charlestown, W. Va., who was sent to the hospital for the insane nearly a year ago, escaped from an attendant Saturday afterncon. She attended a matinee performance at one of the theaters, and at its conclusion started back to the hospital, accompanied by the nurse who attended her. It was about dark when they reached the transfer station at 9th and F streets, and while waiting for the arrival of an Anacostia car Mrs. Mackey slipped away from the woman who had charge of her and disappeared before the latter missed her. Mrs. Mackey had attended the theater a number of times and had never before shown any disposition to run away. She was often referred to as the "child wife" of the former South Carolinian. Yesterday the police received information from Mr. Porterfield that his daughter had gone to the home of Mrs. Rosina Mackey, the divorced wife of the judge, at Rosslyn. The asylum authorities were notified and they arranged to get the fugitive patient and return her to the asylum. Early this morning Judge Mackey, in company with another man, rode in a cab to the residence where his wife had taken refuge, outside of Rosslyn, for the purpose of conveying her back to the city. residence visited is situated on the Lower River road, leading west from Rosslyn, quite a distance from the bridge. When he reached the house he learned that Mrs. Mackey had been there, but had gone away early this morning, with the avowed inten-tion of calling on Judge Cole and having the court again pass upon the question of her sanity. Judge Mackey sent a message this effect to the hospital authorities. Immediately after sending the message Judge Mackey left the drug store and boarded the first east-bound car for Wash-

To a Star reporter Judge Mackey said: "I called at the residence of Mrs. Rosina Mackey at about 9:30 this morning, near Rosslyn, Va. She informed me that my wife had leit, stating that she was going to Washington to see Judge Cole, who had committed her to the asylum, to procure her discharge from that institution. At 12 o'clock I again visited Rosslyn and ascertained that my wife had returned to Mrs. Mackey's, and as she had seen the morning papers announcing my purpose to take her back to the asylum she declared that she would not surrender to me, but that if her father came to her she would surrender to him, in the belief that he would not return her to the asylum. She was com-mitted originally by proceedings which he instituted, and I am satisfied that if she does have a personal interview with him he will secure her discharge, she having a most extraordinary influence over him. I will interpose no objection to that course, provided that he remove her from the District, nor will I take any action to return her to the institution as long as Mr. Rosina Mackey is willing to maintain her in Virginia. I am satisfied from the statements of the superintendent of the asylum that she is an incurable lunatic. I learned after my marriage to her in 1898 that seven years before I met her she was treated for mental trouble in the Maryland Hosp!tal for Women in Baltimore by Dr. Wilson, who still has charge of that institution. Her malady is hereditary, her paternal grandmother having been afflicted with hysteria. I have telegraphed her proposal to Col. Porterfield, her father, at Charlestown. W. Va., to surrender to him, and I have requested him to proceed to Rosslyn."

Construction and Maintenance

Canals Discussed by Mr. Davis. A lecture on the isthmian canal and upon the selection of a route therefor was delivered Friday night before the National Geographic Society by Mr. Arthur P. Davis, chief hydrographer of the isthmian canal commission. In his remarks Mr. Davis pointed out that the value of an isthmian canal depends upon the difference between the tolls charged and the expense it saved in shortening voyages and in the transfer of freights.

Comparisons were made of the most important canals of the world, the Manchester, the Suez, the Keil and the Sault Ste Marie, and figures were furnished showing the traffic in tons, with the annual cost of maintenance and operation of each, and also the cost per ton-mile of every ton of traffic carried through the canals. Comparisons were made also of the prob-ble cost of operation and maintenance of the Nicaraguan and Panama canals, and

Seated in a theater, at times completely dark except for the reflection from a flaming cross in the rear of the stage, the Wash ington Lodge, No. 15, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, last night paid its annual tribute to the "absent brothers" of the order. #### The Memorial Addresses. Exalted Ruler Joseph A. Burkhart presided over the meeting. The addreses were delivered by Representative Charles R. Schirm of Maryland, Rev. Charles Warren Currier, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, and Representative Emmet Tompkins of Ohio. Rev. J. Alexander Specht, the lodge chaplain, assisted Mr. Burkhart, and musical numbers were rendered by the following: Miss Anita Cluss, Mr. H. H. Smith, Mrs. Elsie Bond Bischo and the Marine Band. Mr. Schirm spoke of "Brotherly Love," and the theme of his address was that while environment prompted mankind to contest for self-preservation and the acquisition of wealth, the elimination of selfishness from human nature must be a slow and at times apparently hopeless process; but that "the spark of divinity with which God has blessed His people," though fre-quently obscured, could not be quenched. Rev. Mr. Currier characterized charity as "the death robe of selfishness." "It takes us out of ourselves," he said, "and places us in the world beyond. It makes us feel the heart throbs of humanity. Nothing makes man so Godline as charity."

Justice and Fidelity. Mr. Tompkins spoke of justice and fidelity, the two remaining principles of the Order of Elks. "Can we not draw some inspiration and new resolve from these ceremonies?" he said. "Can we not go out from this house feeling that some good lesson has been here given and learned, and with a fixed determination that on the morrow we will, each of us, take up some new labor for the common weal; that we will do something to make the world better and some one happier? Do not forget that when you stretch your hands to grasp the fruits, in return for these, you owe something to others. Life is with reciprocal obligations we take we must also give; and whether or not we have done our dutyahere, this we will find at the end, when the accounts are balanced. "Be optimistic, rather than pessimistic; hopeful and not discouraged. Have faith in your nation, and love for the flag. Curb tugging ambition, lest it be vain, and ake things as they are rather than complain because they are not as you would have them."

Decision in Favor of the Negative. The first of a series of six debates by the Columbian University Debating Society was held Saturday evening in the lecture room of the university. The subject for debate was: "That government ownership and control of all railroads would be for the best interests of our people." After discussing the subject over two hours the judges. Justice John M. Harlan of the United States Supreme Court, ex-Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire and Mr. Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minis-ter, decided in favor of the negative side. The negative debaters were Messrs. Charles A. Macatee, jr., of Virginia; Richard Col-A. Macatee, Jr., of Virginia; Richard Colbert of Texas and Francis Wilson of Massachusetts. Their opponents were Messrs.

H. F. Samuels of Idaho, T. J. Butler of Kansas and T. A. Scott of Missouri.

Mr. T. A. Scott of Missouri, of the affirmative, was declared the best debater, and Mr. Francis Wilson, the last speaker the negative, was second.

He added that the name, All Saints' Parish, was suggestive of an open home for all those who loved the name that is above every name. It was, said the rector, one of the most grateful features of the work of the church that it had the cordial sympathy and active co-operation of all classes and various denominations. An address of a congratulatory character was made by the bishop of Washington, and he was followed by Rev. Dr. Mackay-Smith, the rector of St. John's Church. The following is a list of officers of All Saints' Parish: Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Childs, rector; Rev. John Cornell, assistant min-ister; Messrs. Spencer Watkins, John L. Weaver, Horace S. Jones, Thomas Peter, Joseph Richardson, Clarence E. Dawson, vestrymen; M. Wilson Offutt, treasurer John H. Pickell, registrar; Dr. John L. Lewis and Edward M. Mix, wardens; J. H. Pickell, Rev. #### BID WAS TOO LOW.

Receivers Decline to Sell Electric Road for $10,000.

The Chevy Chase and Kensington railroad, which connects the town of Kensington with the northern terminus of the Chevy Chase line of the Capital Traction Company, was offered at public sale Saturday. This action was taken by the receivers, R. B. Detrick, W. M. Terrill and R. B. Peter. The property was put up by Thomas J. Owen, auctioneer, and as the highest bid he could get was $10,000. The receivers decided to withdraw it.

It is the intention of the receivers to continue the operation of the road, and perhaps later again offer the property for

Typical German Comedy.

"Der Hausschlissel," or "The Latchkey," typical German comedy in two acts, by Herr E. Herthe, was presented before about 200 hearty Teutons last night in the large hall of the Washington Saengerbund. Members of the bund were cast for the characters of the comedy and made it one of the most rollicking and laugh-inspiring entertainments ever presented in that building. The scenario concerns a small German town with two houses opposed to each other on opposite sides of the stage. Herr W. F. Lutz, a member of the Saengerbund, painted the scenery and was highly complimented on his work. Those in the cast whose work excited most com-ment were: A. Levy, in the part of Herr Heimchen, a henpecked husband; F. Altrup, as Paul Mohrman, a drinking man; Mrs. Altrup, in the role of Virginia, Mohr-man's wife; Mrs. F. Carl, in the part of Frau Heimchen.
